The Szepessy String Trio formed in 2009 at the Royal Northern College of Music where they all studied/are studying as Postgraduates on solo performance courses. They originally formed as a quartet, but have since branched out into the string trio repertoire; a move they have found both challenging and exciting- their viola player in particular has enjoyed having a few more tunes to play!

The Szepessy Trio has been lucky enough to receive regular tuition from truly inspirational musicians such as the Royal Northern College of Music's Director of Chamber Music Petr Prause, James Boyd, Benedict Holland, and Peter Cropper, to name but a few, and are looking forward to continuing to work with other such outstanding musicians in their future studies.
